A SIX-HUNDRED-POUND man: The gentleman stepped on the coal dealer's platform scales and asked to be weighed. The dealer said: "Why, certainly!" and called to the man inside to take the weight. And the man thought it was coal he was weighing and shouted back the weight six hundred pounds.

THAT NIGHT.

You and I, and that night, with its perfume and glory!
The scent of the locusts, the light of the moon,
And the violin weaving the waltzers a sory,
Enmeshing their feet in the weft of the tune,
Till their shadows uncertain
Reeled round on the curtain,
While under the trellis we drank in the June.

Soaked through with the midnight, the cedars were sleeping,
Their shadowy tresses outlined in the bright
Crystal moon-smitten mists, where the fountain's heart, leaping
Forever, forever burst, full with delight;
And its lips on my spirit
Fell faint as that near it
Whose love like a lily bloomed out in the night.

Oh, your glove was an odorous sachet of blisses!
The breath of your fan was a breeze of Cathay!
And the rose at your throat was a nest of spilled kisses!
And the music—in fancy I hear it to-day,
As I sit here confessing
Our secret, and blessing,
My rival who found us and waltzed you away.

FAME VERSUS LOVE.

"It cannot be!"

As these words fell from Helen Armstrong's lips she arose from her seat, an old overturned boat, and moved slowly toward the water's edge.

For a moment her companion, a man of perhaps twenty-five, hesitated; then he joined her, repeating:

"It cannot be, Helen? Surely you are not in earnest. You love me, have you not said it? And yet you refuse to become my wife!"

"Edwin, I—"

"You did not mean it," quickly interrupted Edwin Bennett, adding; "Come, darling, why should not we be happy?" And he drew her hand within his arm.

For an instant she let it rest there, then slowly but firmly she loosened his clasp, as she said:

"For two years you and I have been friends. In that time did you ever know me to change after I had once decided upon anything?"

"No, but—" answered her companion quickly while she, unheeding, goes on with:

"You know the one great desire of my life is to win fame as an artist. Could I do this as your wife?"

"Why not, Helen? Would I not do anything in the world to help you?" came the proud answer, as Edwin Bennett bent his eyes fondly upon the fair face beside him.

"No, Edwin; as a wife I could never hope to obtain fame. Marriage brings to women so many cares that there is very little time left over for other work. I should not make you happy. I should be constantly longing for my old, free life."

"If that is all I am not afraid to risk my happiness, Helen," answered her lover, a more hopeful look lighting up his handsome face.

"Think how for five years," continued Helen, "I have worked with the one end in view. My home, you are aware, has not been particularly agreeable, Uncle and aunt are kind in their way, and have always let me have my own will about painting, providing it did not cost them anything. As for love or sympathy, you have seen how much they have yielded to me."

"Seen and felt for you, Helen, God knows. And now that I will make your life, if love can do it, one happy dream, you will not; and yet you do not deny your love for me."

For a second Helen's eyes rested longingly upon the face of the man who loved her so dearly; then into their dusky depths crept an intense, passionate longing, as they swept the horizon and noted the glorious splendor of the setting sun, while she exclaimed:

"Oh, Edwin! If I only could reproduce that sunset just as it is! If I only could!"

With an impatient sigh he turned away.

"Always her art, never me; perhaps she is right after all. It would always stand between us."

She, not noticing, went on with—

"If it could only stay long enough for me to catch those colors, but, no, it is fading now."

"Edwin," she called.

In an instant he was beside her, everything forgotten except that she was the woman he loved.

"I wanted to tell you how good Mr. Hovey is. It seems that he was acquainted with poor papa years ago, when I was a baby, and therefore feels quite interested in me. You have heard how he praises my work, and last night he proposed—"

"Proposed!" exclaimed Edwin Bennett hotly. "Why, you don't mean to say that old man actually had the audacity to ask you to marry him?"

"How ridiculous! How could you think of such a thing?" answered Helen, a ripple of laughter escaping from between her pretty teeth, as she continued:

"No; he proposed, if I were willing, to send me to Italy for two years, he, of course, defraying the greater part of the expenses. He said when I became famous I could refund him the little amount if I wished. Was it not generous of him! Just think, two years at work among the old masters. What could I not do then? It would be such a help to me. My little income would do, with care, I think."

"And you would go?" As Edwin Bennett asked this question a look of pain crossed his face.

"Why not?" came the reply, as Helen raised her eyes questioningly to her companion.

"You say you love me; and yet you would put the sea between us. Helen, wait; I will work hard and earn money enough to take us both abroad. Do you think I could deny you anything. You should paint to your heart's content, from the old masters, or anything else you pleased. So long as you were happy, I should be. Perhaps I might turn painter, too, some day, with you to inspire me," he added, smiling slightly.

"I do not doubt your love for me, Edwin; but I shall never marry. I intend to devote my life to my art. As a wife it would be impossible for me to do so. I should be hindered and trammeled in a thousand ways. Believe me, I have thought very earnestly of all this, and I—"

"Helen, when I came to spend my vacation here at Little Rock, so as to be near you, I said to myself, Now you ask the woman you love to be your wife, and know that you have a home to offer her. For your sake I wish I were rich; but I am still young; and with the good prospects I have, I do not see why I shall not be able before many years to give my wife all she can wish."

"It is not that, Edwin. I should not love you one bit the more if you were a millionaire," interrupted Helen, glancing reproachfully at him.

"Helen, my holiday is over to-morrow. I must have my answer to-night." The words came somewhat slowly from between Edwin Bennett's teeth,

Mechanically, with the end of her parasol, Helen Armstrong traced on the glittering yellow sands, "Fame versus love." Then, as she became aware of what she had done, she sought to efface them. Too late, Edwin Bennett's hand stayed hers, as pointing to the letters, he said hoarsely;

"Choose!"

For a second she hesitated, then slowly came the answer:

"I accepted Mr. Hovey's offer this morning. I am to sail in a week,"

"God forgive you! I cannot!" Then without another word, he turned and left her.

A faint cry of "Edwin" escaped her lips, as her arms were held out imploringly toward him. They then fell to her side, and she, too, turned and went slowly across the sands in the opposite direction. If he had looked back and seen those outstretched arms, how different their lives would have been; but no, he plodded angrily along the shore, glancing neither to the right nor the left. Little by little the waves crept up and Love was drowned, while Fame stood out bold and clear upon the yellow sand.

* * * * *

Ten years have come and gone since Helen Armstrong and Edwin Bennett parted on the shore, and during that time they had never met. Helen had won that which she had striven for. She had become an artist of renown. Even royalty had been pleased to compliment her upon her art.

For the last month one of Helen Armstrong's paintings had been on exhibition at the Academy of Design, and crowds had been drawn thither to see this last work of the celebrated artist. The subject was simple, nothing new, yet visitors returned again and again to gaze at it.

It was the last day of the exhibition, when a lady and gentleman, the gentleman leading a little girl of perhaps three years by the hand, passed into the room where the painting hung.

"Oh! isn't it too bad there is such a crowd; I wanted to see it!" exclaimed the lady, to which the gentleman replied:

"We will look at the other pictures first and come back again; perhaps there will not be such a crowd then."

An hour or so later the gentleman and lady returned; then the room was almost deserted, except for a few stragglers here and there. It was just about time to close the gallery.

For a few moments they stood in silence, before the painting; then a little voice said:

"Baby wants to see, too, papa."

Stooping down the gentleman raised the pretty, daintily-dressed child in his arms. After gravely regarding the picture for a second; the little one asked.

"Is they mad, papa?"

"I am afraid one was, pet," came the low answer, as Edwin Bennett softly kissed the fair cheek of the little girl. Then his gaze returned to the picture.

A stretch of yellow sands, dotted here and there by huge boulders and piles of showy pebbles, against which the over-hanging cliffs looked almost bleak. Gentle little baby waves rippling in toward the shore, while majestic purple-hued, silver-edged clouds seemed floating en masse toward the golden, crimson-barred sun that flooded the sky and water with its warm light.

In the centre of the picture, where the beach formed a curve resembling a horseshoe, was an old boat, turned bottom upward; some few feet off, the figure of a young man, apparently walking hurriedly away. Although the face was not visible, the gazer felt that the man suffered; that the glorious sunset was this day as naught to him. Perhaps it was in the tightly-clasped hand, the veins of which stood out like great cords, or, maybe the man's apparent diregard of his surroundings.

To the right of the picture the figure of a young girl, trailing a parasol in the sand, as she appeared to move slowly in the opposite direction from her companion. Only a little bit of a delicately shaped ear and a mass of glossy braids showed from beneath the shade hat, but one could readily believe that the pretty girlish figure belonged to an equally attractive face.

About half way between them, traced upon the sands, were the words, "Fame versus Love."

"Is it not lovely, Edwin?" and Mrs. Bennett laid her hand upon her husband's arm as she added:

"Yet how sad it somehow seems. I can't help feeling sorry for them. I wish I could see their faces. I feel as if I wanted to turn them round."

Clasping the little hand that rested so confidingly upon his arm, Edwin Bennett inwardly thanked God for the gift of his fair young wife, as he said:

"Come, dear, they are commencing to close up. Baby's tired, too."

"Ess, me's tired. Baby wants to tiss mamma," lisped the child, holding out her tiny arms.

Husband and wife failed to notice a lady who stood near, gazing at a painting. As the pretty young mother stooped down to receive her baby's kisses, which the little one lavished on her cheeks, lips and brow, a deep, yearning look gathered in the strange lady's eyes and she turned hastily away.

"Oh, Edwin!" exclaimed his wife, as they passed the silent figure in black. "Wouldn't it be nice if baby should grow up to be a great artist like this Miss Armstrong."

"God forbid, Annie," came the earnest reply, followed by, "let her grow to be a true, loving woman, that is all I ask." The lady's hand tightened its hold upon the back of a settee as the words reached her ears, but she did not move until they were out. Then lifting her veil she went and stood before the painting that had won such fame. Tears gathered in her eyes as she gazed, and with the words, "I will never look at it again," she, too, passed out of the building, and in her own handsome carriage was driven home.

Scorn shone in her dark eyes as they fell upon the costly works of art scattered in lavish profusion about her luxuriously furnished apartments. Hastily throwing aside her wraps, she crossed over to a mirror. A very handsome face it reflected. Not looking the thirty years it had known.

Helen Armstrong—for it was she—had heard of Edwin Bennett's marriage; heard that he had succeeded in business beyond his most sanguine expectations; heard that his wife was one of the loveliest and gentlest of women, and that Edwin Bennett idolized both wife and child. This day she had seen them.

Then came the thought that she might have stood in that wife's place; she, too, might have had those baby lips pressed as lovingly to hers; but she had put it from her. She had chosen Fame versus Love. If she could only go back to that day on the sands, how differently she would now act.

Turning away from the mirror, she exclaimed, bitterly;

"Too late, Helen Armstrong. As you have sown so must you reap."

Yaver Aga.

Yaver Aga, the eminent Albanian brigand chief, is just now a much-to-be-pitied man. He commenced business early in the year 1858, ever since which time he has been actively engaged in the pursuit of his avocations, extending his connections steadily until all the banditti of the province came to be in his employ and under his supreme command. Having amassed a handsome fortune, his sole remaining ambition was to complete his twenty-fifth year of his public career in harness, so to speak, and then, after celebrating his jubilee festivity, to retire into private life, carrying with him the respect and esteem of his surviving clients. Now but for the inconsiderately precipitate action of the Turkish authorities of Janina, the worthy Aga's wholesome ambition would doubtless have been realized a very few months hence. Unhappily for his hopes, a military expedition was sent out against him the other day, which succeeded after a severe engagement with Yaver's principal band, in capturing him as well as the managers and cashiers of his several branch establishments, who were in attendance upon him with their annual reports of profits and losses at the time when his retreat was surrounded and stormed by the Ottoman soldiery. As Yaver Aga has been forwarded to Stamboul in chains, there to be dealt with according to the rigor of the law, it may be considered improbable that he will celebrate his jubilee as a free and independent bandit next spring. Let those who will drop a tear over the frustrated aspirations of one whose predatory perseverence has been so ill rewarded by destiny.

Professor Guthrie has succeeded in producing a blue-black protective coating on polished steel by dipping it in melted nitrate of potassium. The bloom greatly improves the appearance of the steel, and it appears to wear well.

Scorpions.

It is wonderful that one doesn't hear of more scorpion stings, considering how abundant these pernicious insects are in nearly every tropical country. They are fairly hardy, too, and will survive a much greater degree of cold than centipedes. One morning, when I had just returned from a voyage and was repacking and arranging some things in my bedroom at the hotel in Southampton, a lively, vigorous scorpion fell out of a shell upon my bare foot; luckily, it rolled off, and the carpet received the emphatic tap of its tail which was intended as a delicate attention to myself. A bath sponge seems to be their favorite haunt, and it always behooves one to carefully examine that article before getting into one's tub in regions where these little pests abound. I think that over a dozen were killed in my cabin during one fortnight—brought there, no doupt, in a box of Espirito Santo orchids from Panama. Cargoes of coir, bales of medicinal woods, bunches of bananas, and other fruits and vegetables in bulk often introduce them on board vessels, and in old wooden ships especially they will remain and colonize the bulkheads and interspaces. I got a nip once, and only once. Walking the main deck of a steamer lying in Ride Janeiro, loading up with coffee, being barefooted and in the dark, I trod as I thought, on a piece of glass; but, drawing my foot up instinctively, I felt the tickling of a scorpion's feet on my heel. It seemed to have curled up after its tail. The local symptoms were about equal in intensity to the bite of a common viper of the sting of a maribunda, but with less constitutional derangement; the ulcer was a long time in healing, however. There is a ghastly story told of a gentleman in India, who, pulling on his boots one morning, felt a horrid prickly object in one of them. With great presence of mind, instead of withdrawing it, he forced his foot violently down and stamped on it furriously, though enduring exquisite agony in the process. But it was not a centipede, only a small blacking brush left there by a careless servant. The Psylli of Pliny and other historians, as well as their modern descendants, who swallow live scorpions and carry them in their caps next their shaven crowns, probably deprived them first of the means of doing harm, as they serve the venomous serpents with which they juggle, by by blunting their stings. It is, nevertheless, very easy to hold a scorpion, and possibly to handle them freely, when accustomed to them. See how some people can pull about wild rats and bees and ferrets without injury, though taking no apparent precaution. Manipulation of snakes, too, only requires a little observance of their weak points and respect for their prejudices, which only glides into insensibility by habit.

Bill Arp's Baby Talk.

The poet hath said that "a baby in the house is a well spring of pleasure." There is a bran new one here now, the first in eight years, and it has raised a powerful commotion. It's not our baby, exactly, but it is in the line of descent, and Mrs. Arp takes on over it all the same as she used to when she was regularly in the business. I thought maybe she had forgot how to nurse 'em and talk to 'em, but she is singing the same old familiar songs that have sweetened the dreams of half a score, and she blesses the little eyes and sweet little mouth and uses the same infantile language that nobody but babies understand. For she says "tum here to its dandmudder," and "bess its 'ittle heart," and talks about its sweet little footsytootsies and holds it up to the windows to see the wagon go by and the wheels going roundypoundy and now my liberty is curtailed for as I go stamping around with my heavy farm shoes she shakes her ominous finger at me just like she used to and says don't you see the baby is asleep, and so I have to tip-toe around, and ever and anon she wants a fire, or some hot water, or some catnip, for the baby is a-crying and surely has got the colic. The doors have to be kept shut now for fear of a draft of air on the baby, and a little hole in the window-pane above as big as a dime had to be patched, and I have to hunt up a passel of kin'lings every night and put 'em where they will be handy, and they have sent me off to another room where the baby can't hear me snore, and all things considered, the baby is running the machine, and the well spring of pleasure is the center of space. A grandmother is a wonderful help and a great comfort at such a time as this, for what does a young mother with her first child know about colic and thrash, and hives, and hiccups, and it takes a good deal of faith to dose 'em with sut tea and catnip, and lime water, and paregoric, and soothing syrup, and sometimes with all of these the child gets worse, and if it gets better I've always had a curiosity to know which remedy it was that did the work. Children born of healthy parents can stand a power of medicine and get over it, for after the cry comes the sleep, and sleep is a wonderful restorer. Rock 'em awhile in the cradle and then take 'em up and jolt 'em a little on the knee, and then turn 'em over and jolt 'em on the other side, and then give 'em some sugar in a rag, and after awhile they will go to sleep and let the poor mother rest. There is no patent on this business, no way of raising 'em all the same way, but it is trouble, trouble from the start, and nobody but a mother knows how much trouble it is. A man ought to be a mighty good man just for his mother's sake, if nothing else, for there is no toil or trouble like nursing and caring for a little child, and there is no grief so great as a mother's if all her care and anxiety are wasted on an ungrateful child.

IN China, table salt is served in a fluid state like vinegar, and is said to be very convenient when used in this way.

BOILED starch is much improved by the addition of a little sperm, or a little salt, or both, or a little gum arabic dissolved.

Life in Ceylon.

Professor Earnest Haeckle, after describing his arrival in Ceylon and its capitol, Colombo, goes on to give an account of his stay with Mr. Stipperger, in his beautiful villa of Whist Bungalow. He says:

"The charming villa of Colombo, where I stayed the first two weeks in Ceylon, lies at the northern end of the city, or rather of the suburb, Mutwal, in an angle formed by the sea and the mouth of the river Kelany-Ganga.

From Colombo through the Pettah (native quarter) and neighborhood it takes fully an hour to reach Whist Bungalow. The solitary situation of the villa, in the midst of lovely scenery, far from the busy city and its public gardens, is one of the sources of the peculiar charm which the quiet country house at once exercised upon me. Whist Bungalow formerly was merely a small, simple house, hidden in a thick shrubbery. It was enlarged and transformed into a stately country house by a later proprietor, Mr. Morgan, an advocate. Mr. Morgan was a man of pleasure and spent the greater part of his fortune in beautifying the villa—the little "Miramare" of Ceylon—in a manner worthy of its charming situation. The large garden was planted with the most splendid trees and ornamental shrubs. A noble colonnade and airy veranda rose around the enlarged house, and the lofty saloons within were luxuriously furnished. For many years dinners and evening parties succeeded each other, much more brilliant—if not so noisy and merry—than the drinking bouts of the whist-playing officers. It seems, however, that Mr. Morgan's colossal expenditure, and his Lucullian mode of life, at last exceeded even his large income, for on his death his creditors seized on the villa, and were glad that its sale by suction restored to them at least a portion of their money. But now came a turning-point in the history of the beautiful villa, and its new proprietor had not much pleasure in his possession. For the legend ran that the ghost of Mr. Morgan, who had died suddenly, haunted the house every night. At 12 o'clock, whether moonlight or not, there was heard a terrible noise; white forms glided through the spacious chambers, winged spirits flitted through the columned halls, and forms with glowing eyes wandered on the roof. Mr. Morgan, as chief spirit, was said to lead the ghastly troop. So Whist Bungalow had remained long uninhabitated when my friend Stipperger heard of it, and on seeing it determined to hire it. But at first not a servant could be persuaded to live in the ill-famed house. That was only possible when the supposed ghosts had been proved to be of zoological origin. On the first night of taking possession Mr. Stipperger waited for the spirits, armed with gun and pistols, and, as was to be expected, they turned out, on being shot, to be flesh and blood animals not the least akin to Mr. Morgan, but wildcats, bandica rats, and flying foxes. The scruples of the most timid domestics were thus overcome, and Mr. Stipperger confidently took up his abode in the solitary villa.

"Long before dawn the fisher families assemble to take their morning bath in the river. Then comes the turn of the horses and oxen. Industrious washerwomen are often employed all day long in beating linenon flat stones and spreading it the shore to dry. Numerous fishing boats pass to and fro, and when the fishermen draw them upon the land in the evening and spread the large, square sails to dry, the tongue of land, with its long row of reposing boats, forms an uncommon and picturesque scene, especially when the evening breeze swells the sails and the setting sun dips into the sea, pouring over the whole a flood of glittering gold, orange, and purple. My friends informed me that this sandy piece of land frequently changes its form in the course of years. It is, in fact, a moving bar, such as are found at the mouths of all the larger rivers in Ceylon. The Kelany-Ganga, rushing wildly from the mountains, brings with it a mass of sand and stones, and as the abundant rains daily carry into it a quantity of earth and mud during its slower course through the plain, considerable banks are formed at its mouth in a very short time. These banks alter in shape and size according as the various streams seek their way hither and thither through the flat delta. It is said that formerly the chief mouth of the Kelany was four miles further south, in Cinnamon Gardens. The lagoons there left, and still in connection with the river by means of small channels, are the remnants of the former mouth, so that the greater part of the city of Colombo lies on the old delta. The picturesque bar now directly opposite Whist Bungalow has alternately been connected with the firm land at its northern and southern points and the wooded island opposite has sometimes been a peninsula and then again an island.

"The coast of this island, like the shore of the garden next to that of Whist Bungalow, is thickly grown with mangroves, and I had the pleasure of observing with my own eyes the remarkable land creating activity of this most important and characteristic of tropical growths. The trees comprehended under the name of mangrove belong to very different species and families, but they all agree in their peculiar form of growth and consequent typical physiognomy; thick and bushy crowns of leaves resting on a thick trunk, and this trunk again resting on a mass of naked many branched roots, rising from six to eight feet above the surface of the water. Between the forked branches of this thick dome of roots is collected the mud and sand brought down by the river, and deposited on its banks, and especially at its mouth, and thus a forest of mangroves favors greatly the increase of firm land. But at the same time many organic substances, such as dead animals or plants, are caught and decay among the entangled roots, and are the cause of dangerous fevers. This is not the case, however, with most of the mangrove woods of Ceylon, and the Kelany is free from fever, as well as the lagoons of Colombo. The reason of the exemption is that the frequent and copious falls of rain often renew the water and wash away the decaying substances before they have any bad effect.

"The garden itself, under the tasteful care of Mr. Stipperger, has become a small Ceylon paradise, and contains representatives of almost all the important species of the flora of the island, forming not only a pleasure ground rich in flower and scent, but also an instructive botanical garden. The very first morning, when, drunk with delight, I wandered under the grove of palms and figs, bananas and acacias, I gained an excellent insight into the composition of the flora of the plains. First in rank comes the noble family of palms, with their stately, valuable trunks, cocos and talipot, areca and borassus, caryota and palmyra, then the splendid light green bananas, with their delicate but gigantic fronds split by the wind, and valuable golden fruit. Besides different specimens of the common banana, our garden contains a tall and magnificent specimen of the strange, fan-shaped 'tree of the traveller' from Madagascar. It stands where the principal pathway branches off on the left to a splendid example of the sacred fig tree. This latter, with its pendant air roots, is very curious; many beautiful Gothic arches open between these roots, which support the trunk-like columns. Other trees belonging to different groups, (laurels, myrtles, ironwood trees, bread fruit trees, etc.) are enveloped by splendid creeping plants and overgrown with the lianas that play such a chief part in the flora of Ceylon; for the fulness of life and constant damp, heat has such an effect that in the densest forests crowds of the most various plants struggle upward towards the light and air. Among the other ornaments of the garden I will specially mention the large leaved callas or Aroids, and the beautiful feathery ferns, two very important groups both for the quantity of examples and the beauty and size of their fronds. Then there are still many of the most magnificent tropical leaf, and-blossom plants, which, partly indigenous to the island, partly from other tropical regions—for example, South America—thrive here excellently. Above them towers the stately hibiscus, with the large yellow-and-red flowers; acacias with masses of beautiful fire-colored blossoms and mighty tamarinds with their aromatic flowers; while from their branches hang climbing thunbergias with gigantic violet-colored bells, and aristolochiæ with large yellow and brown funnel-shaped flowers. Many rubiaceæ, lilies, and orchises show particularly large and beautiful blossoms.

Don't You Forget It!

A woman who wanted the Common Council of Detroit to pass an ordinance to forbid goats from running at large in her neighborhood, called at a store on Michigan avenue to ask the proprietor what sort of a petition she must send in.

"Why, you want to state the case just as you have stated it to me," he replied.

"But how shall I begin?"

"Well, let's see. I believe they usually start off with: 'To the Hon. the Common Council.'"

"I don't believe it!" she exclaimed, and turning to a customer she appealed to him to decide.

"I am not certain how a petition begins," he said, "but I know that it must end up with: "And we will ever pray.'"

"Not much we won't," growled the woman, "after a drove of goats has walked all over the roof of my house for the past year, and eaten up three calico dresses, two sheets and a bed quilt for me. Maybe the butcher next door knows how to fix it."

She went in and stated the case to the butcher; and he thought it over and replied:

"It seems to me that it should begin with something like: 'To your very respectable body,' and close with: 'I am your very obedient servant; but I'm not sure,"

"Servant! Do you suppose that I'm doing anybody's kitchen work.

"No, madam; but it's the form, you see."

"Well form or no form, I'm not going to call myself anybody's obedient servant. I'll write the petition myself."

The stepped to the desk, drew a long breath, and in five minutes had finished. It read:

"I'm being bothered to death by goats; and if you don't pass a law to stop it there will be a row in the old Eighth Ward, and dont you forget it!"

Lighter and Keener Tools and Implements.—As implements made of steel are lighter, stronger, and keener than those of iron, so are they better adapted to use by manual labor, by horse power, or by the power of water and steam. A man walks easier with light shoes, light clothes and spends his time more directly upon the work before him in proportion as there is less labor between himself and that work. Give a man an iron axe, and he, besides becoming discouraged, finds his blows to tell less efficiently and with less precision than when there is an edge of sharp steel between his hands and the tree. The same applies with all kinds of blunt, unscientifically shaped implements. A hoe of right inclination will go under and lift the soil, while another will drag over it. A lipped drill will go under the grain of a Bessemer steel rail, while such a drill as is ordinarily used in boring cast iron will only operate to render the fibers more compact, and will have about the same difference of effect in boring as a blunt and a sharp edged ax do in cutting. Every carpenter knows the difference in a properly and improperly filed saw, and in two different lipped augers. A sloping plowshare will scour and run lightly under the soil, while a blunt one will clog and drag through it with difficulty. The same is true of the cutting edge of a turning tool for iron, wood, or steel, or the plane for either of these. With the discovery of a process for cheaper steel, it is practical to give a very much diminished weight of metal in carriages and carts as well as in railroad cars and any other machinery requiring strength and lightness. The chief success of American manufactures in competition with the older nations, where labor is cheaper and manufacturing longer and more economically established, is their lightness, strength and peculiar adaptability to the labor they are to perform. A ditch digger handling a shovel weighing but five pounds and lifting five pounds of dirt will work with much more animation and to much more purpose than if raising five pounds of dirt on a shovel weighing ten pounds. The same is true in all mechanical appliances and powers, whether of a pump, a steam engine, a water wheel, or any other. The cost of raising dead weight is often the difference between failures and success.

GOOD roads are evidences of civilization, and a true index of the thrift and public pirit of those sections which they traverse.

"LET US HAVE PEACE."

Now that the election is over and nearly everybody so happy over the result, let us have peace. For nearly siz months we all had politics for dinner, politics for supper. politics all around and all over, and now let us have a good long vacation. Not that citizens should ignore politics altogether and take no interest in public affairs. All should keep themselves well informed in the political history of the country—especially on the current events of the present, the live questions of the day. This is not only a privilege but a high duty of every American citizen. But it is not necessary to talk about politics on every possible occasion and with every one we meet. This often leads to violent and angry argumentation and not seldom to bad feeling between neighbors and friends. Passion takes the place of reason and men forget the respect due to each other.

There are other duties than politics that are worthy of our best efforts. It is the highest duty of every father to provide for his family—to feed, cloth and educate his children, and it just now a very seasonable time to give due attention to our schools. We do not appreciate our responsibilities in this matter as we should. Too much is left to mere chance and the whims and fancies of our children. Let there be some solid reform in this great work.

We also owe important duties to the comunity in which we live. Every public and private improvement calculated to enchance our material prosperity, should receive our best encouragement and help. Whatever benefits one man in the neighborhood benefits all to a certain degree.

It is an opportune season too, now that the excitement and anxiety incident to a political campaign are over, to take a fresh start in Sunday school and church work, in the temperance cause, in deeds of charity and love to the shivering, the poor, the sick, the orphan, the homeless and friendless.

Let us have a rest in politics, but remember activity in business, in educational, moral and religous develoments.

Senator Hill's Successor.

ATLANTA, November 15.—On joint ballot to-day for United States Senator for the short term Barrow received 119 votes; Hill, 99. For the long term, beginning March 4, Ex-Governor Colquitt received 122 votes; Jackson, 40; Black, 33, and Anderson, 20. Colquitt was elected.

What Manner of Man he is.

From Philadelphia correspondence to Harrisburg Patriot.

ROBERT EMORY PATTISON, the governor-elect takes his triumphant election calmly and cooly. He has not lost his head, nor do I think he will. He is a young man with an old head on his shoulders. Those who know him immediately, both democrats and republicans, speak of him in the highest terms. He is the son of the late Rev. Robert E. Pattison, D. D., a noted minister of the M. E. church, and for many years the secretary of the old Philadelphia conference. Young Pattison is named after the late Rev. Robert Emory, D. D., who was the second president of Dickinson college, Carlisle, after it passed into the control of the Methodist episcopal church. He is a consistent Methodist himself, and is a leading member of the Twentieth street M. E. church, Twentieth below Walnut, of which Rev. John Richard Boyle, formerly of the Duke street M. E. church, Lancaster, is pastor. Mr. Pattison is active in all church matters. He is president of the board of trustees of his church, and likewise a teacher in the Sunday school, having charge of the young ladies' bible class. He possesses in an eminent degree the love and esteem of his fellow parishioners. In his personal intercourse he is easily accessible, and is an entertaining conversationalist. As a public speaker he is fluent, but plain and practical, places every word at the right place and with telling effect. His speech at Horticultural Hall the Saturday night previous to the election was really a masterly effort. A prominent republican gentleman said to me the other day: "Mr. Pattison will be no figure-head. He will be the governor himself. He appreciates the gravity of the situation, and his constant effort will be to give the people of Pennsylvania an honest, efficient and economical administration. He is a conscientious, Christian man, and never neglects his religious duties. You may rest assured his administration will be a success." Such is the man whom Pennsylvanians have just elevated to the highest office within their gift.

How Did Hubbell Spend the Money.

WASHINGTON, November 9.—The clerks in the departments are now discussing the question as to what has become of Hubbell's political assessment fund. A well-informed official says he has looked in vain for the election of a single Congressman due to the expenditure of the assessments forced from the government employes, except in Virginia. He complained that there was no redress or method of investigation as to the manner in which the money was disposed of. The employes were told that their money was to be used where it would do the most good. Some of the clerks accuse Hubbell of squandering the money. It is said that coupes were hired and cigars, lunches and liquors were provided for those employed by the committee, all of which were paid for out of the assessment fund. An effort will be made to have the disbursement of the fund investigated.

Agents make money canvassing for it. Any subscriber authorized to act as agent. Send 50 cents for a year's subscription, or write your name and those of your neighbors on a postal card for free sample copies and our Illustrated Premium List. Address, Farmers' Friend Pub. Co., South Bend, Ind.

GOVERNOR-ELECT Pattison has appointed as his private secretary the Rev. Dr. Thomas T. Everett, pastor of St. Stephen's Methodist Episcopal Church, 4621 Germantown avenue, Philadelphia. Dr. Everett will accept the position. This is Mr. Pattison's first appointment.

BIG DAN HASTINGS made a very neat speech at the Democratic jollification meeting in Bellefonte, the other Saturday evening. Dan is just the chap that can make a speech and moreover, he seems to be as happy over the result of the election as any of them.

A MAJORITY of 1702—723 more than Gov. Pattison had, shows the high estimate in which Ex-Governor Curtin is held by all parties in his own native county. Carry the news to Speaker Kyfer.

REPUBLICAN papers say that the Democrats must suffer the consequences for having elected Pattison. Guess they can stand it all if the other fellows can.

JERRY CROUSE, the Republican candidate for Prothonotary in Snyder county, squeezed through with a majority of 32. Guess he is glad for only that much.

CONGRESS meets on Monday, December 3d. It is a real pity that the newly-elected members can not take their seats at once.

Many Republicans are most fearfully mad over Gov. Hoyt. Guess he can stand it though if the other chap can.

Gov. Curtin's official majority in the district is 5,227. Common candidates would be happy with less than half that number.

FIRST GOODS

FOR THE

FALL SEASON FOR 1882.

We have now what we think the Largest and Most Attractive Stock of

DRY GOODS

Ever brought to this city and are now better prepared to show you than we ever were before. owing to the fifty-foot extension put to our store. It gives us much more room to show our goods, more satisfactory to ourselves and to our customers. Now we don't want to annoy you with a long advertisement, but will give you some few points worth knowing and it will be worth your time when in Lock Haven to call and see our goods, whether you wish to buy or not.

DRESSGOODS.

In this we can safely say that there never was such a stock brought to this city as we have now to show you; as fine as any house in Philadelphia. The assortment is not quite as large, this we will admit, but we have the new things and that is all we want.

PLUSHES AND VELVETS

Are the rage this Fall and they are indeed very pretty. We have them in all the new shades and as low in price as you will find them in Philadelphia or New York.

Brocade Velvets in all shades,

Brocade Plushes

Stripe Velvets in all shades,

Stripe Satin Ottoman,

Plain a tin Ottoman.

EMBROIDERED DRESSES FROM $25 TO $42.

Together with these we have Plain Plushes, Plain Colored Velvets, $1.25 and $2.50. Back Velvets, $1.25, $2.50, $3.50, $4.25 and $5.00. Together with all these fine goods we have Plain Suitings, Stripe Suitings, Plain Flannel Suitings, with Braids in all colors to match. We will say again we can certainly show you a fine line of goods and can suit any customer from the lowest to the very best goods in the market; all we ask is an examination. Now, we have already taken up considerable space for our DRESS GOODS; we have not much room to say much about other goods, but we have them and at prices that are as low as any one can possibly sell them, and the advantage you have by buying from us, you will have so much more to select from. Our.

Flannel and Underwear

DEPARTMENTS

Have never been so well stocked as this season. We bought these goods in large quantities, as last Winter, you know, was not very cold and we have every reason to believe that this will be a severe one. In view of this we bought largely in these goods and can sell you better goods for less money than any other house in the city. Particular attention is called to a RED TWILL FLANNEL, extra heavy, at 37½cts. A Ladies' Scarlet Vest $1 75. Gents Scarlet Shirt and Drawers 98cts. a piece. Gents' Scarlet Shirts and Drawers $1.75 a piece, and the big drive in a

—Please bring that wood.

—Our heavy editor is in Bellefonte this week, courting.

—A good, industrious girl wants a place to do general house work. Inquire at the Journal office.

—Thomas N. Magee, County Superintendent of Clinton county, has resigned and accepted a position as bookkeeper for Kistler Brothers, Lock Haven.

—For fine, tasty and novel Holiday goods the Journal Store is the place to buy. Just come and see and be convinced that this assertion is based on truth.

—Gov. Pattison is opposed to having a big fuss and demonstration made over his inauguration. He prefers to be installed into office in a quiet, old-fashioned manner, and that is real sensible in Bobby.

—Wasser, of the Girard Press, has a sore thumb ever since the election and can not write. Poor fellow, how we pity him. But can't you handle the scissors, 'Lias and clip 'lection news? There are still lots of it coming from York state.

—Rev. John A. De Moyer, of Ashland, Schuylkill county, will be presented by the members of that county for chaplain of the House. Mr. DeMoyer is well and favorably known here, having traveled Penn's Valley circuit and resided in Millheim some twenty-two years ago.

—There will be a musical convention in the Reformed Church, Rebersburg, between Christmas and New Year, conducted by that efficient and popular teacher, Prof. John A. Weaver, Pine Grove Mills. Ample arrangements will be made to render it a complete success in all respects.

Inventors and Patentees.
should send for instructions, reasonable terms, references, &c., to Edson Brothers, Solicitors of Patents, Washington, D. C. who furnish the same without charge. Edson Brothers is a well known and successful firm of large experience, having been established in 1855. tf

—Mr. J. A. Limbert our accomodating mail carrier on the Coburn—Woodward route hereby informs his many friends and patrons along the line that he will carry packages of almost all kinds and sizes at very reasonable rates. Thanking them for their past favors he respectfully solicits their further patronage.

FRESH OYSTERS.—If you get hungry for fresh oysters stop in at D. I. Brown's oyster saloon. He keeps them and has his tables always ready and loaded with the spiciest delicacies that could be wanted for a first class oyster supper. Families can be accomodated with oysters by the pint, quart or gallon. Best place in town for oysters and don't you forget it.

—We are happy to see by the Girard, (Kansas) Press, that our friend P. J. Leitzell, formerly of Spring Mills, was elected county saperintendent of Crawford county, Kansas, over his Republican competitor, by the handsome majority of 243. The county Attorney was the only other Democratic candidate elected in the county. Well do we remember the long time ago when Perc was a little shaver in the primer class in the old Beaver Dam school house.

Driven Mad by the Election.

ERIE, November 23.—There was a terrible scene in the county jail this morning with William MacAvoy, the Greenback-Labor politician, who was driven mad by the result of the elections. Being possessed of almost superhuman strength, he began tearing down the bars of his cell, twisting them like twigs. Foaming at the mouth, he cursed Beaver and Pattison for defeating Armstrong, the Labor candidate for Governor, and when the warden with a body of prisoners went to secure him, he held them at bay with a bar of iron for a long time. There is but little hope of his recovery.

CONSUMPTION CURED.

An old physician, retired from active practice having had placed in his hands by an East Indiana Missionary the formula of a simply vegetable remedy for the speedy and permanent cure of Consumption, Bronchitis, Catarrh, Asthma, and all Throat and Lung affections also a positive and radical cure for General Debility and all nervous complaints after having thoroughly tested its wonderful curative powers in thousands of cases, feels it is his duty to make it known to his fellows. The recipe, with full particulars, directions for preparation and use, and all necessary advice and instructions for successful treatment at your own home will be received by you by return mail, free of charge, by addressing with stamp or stamped self addressed envelope to

DR. J. C. RAYMOND.
164 Washington Street, Brooklyn, N Y

—Our jovial friend, Mr. Wm. Pealer gave us a call on Monday afternoon. Mr. P. was formerly salesman in J. B. Fisher's store, Penn Hall, but is now on the look-out for a good location to set himself up in the mercantile business. Will is a practical and shrewd business man and will no doubt meet with success. Here's to you.

—Hon. John E. Faunce, of Philadelphia, and Jake Zeigler, of Butler county are prominently mentioned as candidates for Speaker of the Legislature. Mr. Faunce was the Democratic nominee for Speaker twice before, while Mr. Zeigler is the oldest member of either, having been a member of the House thirty-five years ago, and subsequently clerk. Both are excellent men and eminently fit for the position.

—Those of our readers who took our advice of some time ago and got themselves good serviceable overcoats at Lewins, in Bellefonte, are now comfortable and happy while the other chaps are cold and shivering,and afraid to venture out. But no one need be discouraged. Lewin still has lots and gobs of overcoats, yea entire suits and gent's furnishing goods, all of which he sells very cheap. You may be a juror, witness or party to a suit within the next three weeks and then you can attend to the matter without extra expenses.

—Next Thursday is Thanksgiving Day—Don't forget the time. Don't forget to be sincerely thankful for the many blessings—material and spiritual—which the great Giver of all good bestowed upon you during the past year. Don't forget the suffering and the poor around you. You can easily spare a few bushels of corn, oats, potatoes, or something else that would be a godsend to some needy family near you. Be thankful enough on Thanksgiving Day to send some substantial present to some one really needy, and "Don't you forget it."

—The Ladies' Lutheran Mite Society expects to give a grand entertainment in the Town Hall, commencing with Christmas and ending Wednesday evening, Decbr. 27th. The programme will consist of turkey, chicken, oysters—of course cooked, stewed, fried, roasted, barbacued, any style you wish. The dear ladies know just how to do it all, you can bet high on that. They even talk of delicious pies, luscious cakes and numerous other delicacies that make our big Saxon mouth water as we write. We are coming, ladies, sure. Nothing but sickness or some other providential interference will keep us back. Nor will we be surprised to see about 999 do just as we do.

SPRING MILLS ITEMS.

Sam Patch had concluded to go up Salt River but will not go just now. So you can look for items weekly.

Mr. William Pealer, book keeper at J. B. Fisher's has quit there and is looking around to start a ranch of his own. Come to our town—the more the merrier.

W. S. Hettinger bought a farm from John Grove' known as the James I. Forster track, for $4500. Cheap enough.

Mr. James Krape and family came to town with sack and pack last week. You are welcome James. Sorry you lost a cow.

Our burg is still on the increase. Barney Evans and Amos Koch both have houses under construction, and Jacob McCool's will be up in a few days. Come along, gentlemen, more lots for sale very cheap by I. J. Grenoble.

Dan Runkle has greatly improved his house by giving it a coat of paint in the latest style.

News Miscellany.

Joseph Hill, a Williamsport machinist, has invented a steam street car, which he thinks meets every requirement.

The weekly production of glass at the Bellefonte glass works is 900 boxes, or about 150 boxes daily.

General B. F. Butler came within an ace of drowning in the rapids of the Merrimac near Lawrence, Mass., the other day. He left a steamer by a skiff, which was overturned. He escaped with a wetting.

J. F. Reamer, a Williamsport school teacher, has been arrested for punishing a boy named Zerby. The school board on Monday evening heard the case and decided that Mr. Reamer was justifiable in punishing the boy as he did.

A Georgian Killed by an Elephant.

From the Griffin News.

A negro at Barnesville, on Wednesday, gave an elephant in Barrett's circus a chew of tobacco, for which the ungrateful beast caught him up in his trunk and injured him so that he died the next day.

Some of the women of Borland, Luzerne county, had a little difficulty recently about some slanderous stories that had been circulated concerning one of the neighbors. They resolved to settle it according to the most approved Marquis of Queensbury rules, and after a number of rounds had been fought the pugilists were seperated. They had punished each other severely.

A BLACK ACT IN PANTOMIME.

From the Nashville American.

In the Davidson County Jail is confined a man on the charge of murder, whose name will not be mentioned, the American not wishing to prejudice his case. The prisoner in question is given to somnambulistic habits. When the bells of the city usher in midnight the prisoner arises from his couch in a stealthy and noiseless manner, creeps out to the door of the cell and scrutinizes the hall, or as much of it as can be seen through the door, and also every corner of his narrow apartment, as if intent upon satisfying himself that no one is in the vicinity. He then proceeds to take a cotton shirt and fills the body of it with the covering of the bed, also stuffing the arms full. He places this in one corner on a chair and puts upon the top of it a hat. Having arranged this to suit him the somnambulist with noiseless tread walks over to the place where a broom is kept and grasps it as if it were a gun, creeps with a catlike tread upon the figure in the chair. The manœuvre consumes considerable time, the "sleeper" apparently acting as if he was engaged in picking his way through brush or low timber.

Having arrived at a point from which a good view can be commanded he coolly and deliberately raises the broom in right angles to his shoulder. After taking a long aim he goes through the same motion that one would in firing a gun. He then approaches the chair, picks up the "dummy" and carries it to the remote corner of the cell. He then goes down on all fours and goes through the motion of digging with his hands. Having dug until the hole is large enough he places the stuffed shirt in it and carefully covers it up, stamping the floor of the cell as if he was pressing down uneven ground. He then scatters over it an armful of leaves, which he goes through the process of gathering from the different portions of his cell.

The work concluded to his satisfaction, the sleep-walker conceals the broom under his bed, as if hiding a gun. He then washes his hands, examines his clothes carefully, as if to see if there was any blood upon them, and resorts again to his couch, to sleep quietly until morning. The prisoner when informed of his strange freak in his waking moments, denies all knowledge of the occurrence.

SEND THE CHILDREN TO SCHOOL.—One of the greatest drawbacks to the success of our Common School system, is the irregular attendence of many of the pupils. In almost every school there are children who seem to attend by fits and starts, who are in their place to-day and absent to-morrow. At the end of term they are decidly behind their more punctual fellows,and the responsibility is almost invariably put on the unfortunate teacher. Parents who permit their children to absent themselves from school upon the most trival pretext, are always the most severely critical in their attitude toward teachers. They do not seem to remember that their children have only been in the school room semi-occasionly, or if they do remember it, they appear to esteem it as a matter of minor importance. Yet it is a fact that no child who is irregular in his or her attendance at school, will make much progress. Parents ought to remember this truth and improve in this respect. Send your children to school every day and you will be agreably surprised at the result.—Philipsburg Journal.

TAKEN FOR A BEAR.

A Pennsylvania Hunter Who Was Shot by Mistake and Killed.

XENA, Ohio, November 12.

A party of Greene county hunters, just returned from the forest of Michigan, report a very sad affair which occured and which hastened their return home. Samuel Tarbox, a prominent and highly-respected citizen of this county, constituted one of the Greene county party, and one evening about dusk, while he was out a short distance from camp, he discovered bear tracks, and upon looking about thought that he discovered the animal in a thicket a short distance in advance of him. Mr. Tarbox raised his rifle and fired and brought down the object to the ground, but on advancing was horrified to find that his rifle-ball had pierced the body of a human instead of the animal, as he had supposed. The man wore a suit of dark clothes and a tight-fitting skull-cap and was in a stooping position when Mr. Tarbox shot him. The supposition is that the unfortunate man was after the same bear Mr. Tarbox was tracking, as he was one of a party of Pennsylvania hunters who were encamped a short distrnce from the camp of the Greene county men. The Coroner of the county in which the accident happened was notified and an inquest held. Mr. Tarbox was exonerated from all criminal intent, but since his return he has been almost crazed with grief and it is thought the shock to his nervous system may affect his reason. The name of the victim of Mr. Tarbox's mistake could not be learned.

A FIERCE FIRE.

A fierce fire started in the Short Mountain Colliery at Lyken last Sunday evening, which throws about fifteen hundred employes out of work and will cause a general suspension of operations in the slope for months and perhaps a year. Men were immediately set to work to head the fire off, but everything they tried proved unavailing. In a few hours flames came out on the slope and steadily worked upwards. The lower part of the slope house was cut away in order to save that building. The water from Bear creek and the old tunnel was turned in the slope and the work of drowning the fire commenced. The mules in the slope, numbering about 150, were taken out, but as it required much time, only one or perhaps two, being brought out at one time, it is thought some have been left to their fate. The fire is confined so far entirely to Short Mountain slope but if the air should change and go down the slope it would drive it to the Lykens Valley mine in a short time.

This is the second fire in this slope, and in this case as in the first, it was caused through the negligence of one of the employes, who went home in the evening for his supper. There will be an investigation and then the true cause will be brought to light. The fire throws out of employment for perhaps years about 1,500 men and boys. The colliery is operated by the Lykens Valley Company, but controlled by the Pennsylvania railroad.

AGRICULTURE.

NEGLECTED LANDS IN USE FOR PASTURAGE.—It is a common practice on many farms to improve the more inviting portions of the homestead, converting these into tillage fields and meadows, apparently condemning for use as pasture the remainder. This remainder, many times, presents a sorry sight. If the farm is upon land formerly covered with timber, the pasture ground is likely to be thinly set in dwarf blue grass, with patches here and there of white clover, mullein, and possibly a little sorrel. Rotting logs and stumps are scattered around. The stock, after having hunted in vain to obtain their fill, retreat to the shade, of which there is liable to be a superabundance, made up of worthless trees, which encumber the ground they stand upon. The animals grow but little, are always small and lean, and are never expected by the owner to be otherwise; and under this kind of management, drag out a life about on a par with the cattle of South America, having, individually, about as much merit. A farm provided with grazing ground of the kind referred to should never be made the home of improved stock. If bought in good condition, and the transfer be made from good pasture to those of the kind described, they will inevitably shrink. It is not surer that water will find its own level than that well bred and meritorious stock will, in a few years, upon such pasturage, get down towards the level of the scrub, for upon soil that grows only poor grass and weeds, the best of stock will become stunted and less valuable. Nor will liberal feeding during winter compensate for the half year of such summer treatment as that referred to for the reason that the best part of the year in which to secure growth and condition is frittered away. All neglected, cast away lands, whether in timbered districts or otherwise—and the kind mentioned is equally common to prairie farms—should be reclaimed, by being thoroughly broken up, planted to a suitable crop, and afterward seeded down; if for pasture alone, not to one kind of grass, but to two or three. It is not often enough remembered that it should be a leading object, if growing any grain crop, to pave the way for grass. It is folly to expect good pasture without some preliminary preparation of soil for it. At any rate, as a rule, no good yield can be had until the land is tilled in such a manner as will insure good growth.

THE PIG IN AGRICULTURE.—The pig has recently been spoken of in contempt when compared with our domestic animals. But if we examine his good qualities at all critically we must award him a high place in agriculture. He is found to produce a pound of product from less food than either cattle or sheep, and is therefore, the most economical machine to manufacture our great corn crop into marketable meat. Our people are becoming wiser every year, and exporting less, proportionately, of the raw material of condensed product. If it takes seven pounds of corn on the average to make a pound of pork, as is no doubt the case, the farmer begins to see the economy of exporting one pound of pork, bacon or ham, instead of seven pounds of corn. The difference in cost of freight makes a fine profit of itself; besides, the pound of meat is usually worth more than 7 pounds corn in the foreign market. The production of pork should be encouraged on the further consideration that it carries off less of the valuable constituents of the soil than beef. The fat pig contains only three-fourths as much mineral matter per cwt. as the fat steer, and only two-fifths as much nitrogen per cwt.; and therefore the production of a ton of pork on the farm will carry off only a little more than half the fertility carried off by a ton of beef. Besides, a ton of beef will require nearly 50 per cent. more to produce it. This gives in round numbers the comparative effect of producing pork and beef. It is thus evident that the pig should have a high place in our agriculture; should be fostered in every way; his capabilities studied and pushed; his diseases carefully noted and prevented, for he is the most profitable meat-producing animal on the farm. The pig is an excellent adjunct to the dairy, turning all refuse milk and even whey into cash. As he is king of our meat exports, so let us treat him with great consideration.

TO AVOID GRAPE ROT.—Grape roots are generally planted about eight feet apart, and from two to three shoots are allowed to grow from each root. Very early in the Spring the vines are trimmed close and short. The young shoots put out very close together, and form a great mass of leaves with the bunches of grapes underneath, almost or quite hidden from the sun's rays. The result of all this is that the vines are permitted to overbear, the grapes are hidden from the sun's rays, and they rot and fall off, and the owner there of bemoans his bad luck of not having a large quantity of this most luscious fruit to eat and sell, and if he likes to make into wine to tickle his own palate and that of his friend or friends. Now, let me suggest the remedy, if I can. Plant the vines 16 feet apart, instead of eight. Trim them along the trellis or on top of the arbor, and give each line an abundance of length, and cut off all but one vine from each root, then the bunches of grapes will have an abundance of air, light and sun's rays, and I venture the opinion that the rot will not make its appearance.

A GOOD deal of care must be observed in banking up celery. If the earth is applied when the stalks are wet the celery will be liable to rust, and it is necessary to be careful not to get the earth into the heart of the plants, because in such an event it will also cause rust. From this time up to the appearance of frost, celery should be banked at least once a week, but in so doing the plants should not be clogged with the earth. A little of that article at a time is much better than to cover the plants almost up, and then wait a month or six weeks before banking it up again.

IN the summer, after the hatching time is passed, collect from thirty to fifty dozen (or buy them fresh, when eggs are 15 to 25 cents a dozen), and prepare a liquid, thus: One pint of common salt, one pint of lime, dissolve in four gallons of boiling water, let it settle, and put the eggs into the liquor in stone jars when cold. Cover the eggs entirely in the liquid, and use "stone," and not soft crockery ware jars. On no account use casks, wooden firkins, tubs, or anything but stone vessels. Thus embedded, eggs will keep for 12 months and come out in good shape.

WARM skim milk mixed with a moderate quantity of crushed and scalded oats makes the most excellent food for raising good dairy animals. Alternate the oats with linseed and cottonseed meal. These foods contain large amounts of bone and muscle material and will give the cow a good constitution and a well-formed frame.

FOR general purposes on the farm castor oil, with a little kerosene added, is the best lubricator and preserver. For saws, mowers, buggies and the like, this mixture furnishes more body with less gum than most other oil. The amount of kerosene, if any, to be added must be governed by the purpose for which it is designed.

DOMESTIC.

WASHING WITH HARD WATER.—To those who have to use hard water for washing, this method may be recommended: Procure a large barrel, set it close to the well, and let some one who is able, if you are not, fill it with water; then put in two panfuls of wood ashes, skim off the coals, let it stand two days at least; wash your white clothes as for boiling, soap them, and lay them in a clean tub; have sufficient broken water boiling hot to cover them, pour it on them, and cover immediately with one or two thick woolen blankets, and let them stand until the next morning; then wring them out, and you have a splendid suds with which to wash your colored clothes, also with the broken water, and your clothes will look as nice and whiteas if you had used rain-water. This is a good way for women who are not strong, as they are not so liable to overwork as if they did it all in one day.

EVERYBODY should send 25 cents to Strawbridge & Clothier and receive their Fashion Quarterly for six months. Nearly 1000 illustrations and four pages of new music in each issue.

PROTECTION FROM LIGHTNING.—An extremely cheap and simple way of protecting houses from the effects of lightning is reported to have been recently made in France. It consists merely of straw attached to sticks or broom-handles and placed on the roofs of houses in an upright position. The first trials of this simple apparatus were made at Tarbes (Hautes Pyrenees) by some intelligent agriculturists, and the result was so satisfactory that afterwards eighteen communes of the Tarbes district provided all their houses with these bundles of straw, and there have been no accidents from lightning since in the district.

RESCUED FROM DEATH.

William J. Coughlin, of Somerville, Mass., says: In the fall of 1876, I was taken with BLEEDING OF THE LUNGS, followed by a severe cough. I lost my appetite and flesh, and was confined to my bed. In 1877 I was admitted to the Hospital. The doctors said I had a hole in my lung as big as a half dollar. At one time a report went around that I was dead, I gave up hope, but a friend told me of DR. WILLIAM HALL'S BALSAM FOR THE LUNGS. I got a bottle, when to my surprise, I commenced to feel better, and to-day I feel better than for three years past.

BAKER'S PAIN PANACEA cures pain in Man or Beast. For use externally or internally.

SARATOGA POTATOES.—Peel and wash the potatoes, and cut them in thin slices. This may be done with a slaw cutter; lay them in cold water until wanted, then take them out and wipe them by putting them in a towel and lightly rubbing them; have in a frying-pan sufficient lard to swim the potatoes; when boiling hot drop in a few at a time, and let them brown; then lift them out with a fork so as to drain off the fat; set them in the oven to keep hot; if properly done they will be crisp and brown.

SMALL ONION PICKLES.—Little onions not larger than marbles must be cares fully peeled and kept eight days in a strong brine, changing the brine every other day. Skim them out into a cloth, dry them well, and put them into glass bottles. Add spices and three or four small red peppers, and fill up with strong cider vinegar. If you put in a tablespoonful of olive oil it will prevent the onions from turning yellow. Mustard seed, horseradish, allspice, cloves, pepper corns and mace are all good spicing for onions, according to taste.

Pure cod liver oil, from selected livers, on the seashore, by Caswell, Hazard & Co., N Y. Absolutely pure and sweet. Patients who have once taken it prefer it to all others. Physicians declare it superior to all other oils.

Chapped hands, face, pimples and rough skin cured by using Juniper Soap, made by Caswell, Hazard & Co., New York.

ORANGE CAKE.—Mix two cups of sugar with the yolks of two eggs, then add the whites beaten to a stiff froth, next add a large tablespoonful of butter, then one of milk and flour to make as stiff as cup cake, flavor to taste; bake in jelly pans; filling, one lemon, two oranges, grate the rinds and add the juice, one cup of sugar, one tablespoonful of corn-starch, one cup of water; boil until smooth; cool before putting between cakes.

Lyon's Patent Metallic Heel Stiffeners keep new boots and shoes from running over. Sold by shoe and hardware dealers.

LEMON PUDDING.—One pint of white sugar, one-quarter of a pound of butter, three lemons, four wine glasses of water, the yolks of four eggs; cook down and pour over sponge cake sliced in a pan. Beat the whites of four eggs with two tablespoonfuls of white sugar to each white of egg and put over the top of the pudding. Let it remain in the oven just long enough to become a light brown.

Dr. Kline's Great Nerve Restorer is the marvel of the age for all nerve diseases. All fits stopped free. Send to 931 Arch Street, Philadelphia, Pa.

A VALUABLE PASTE.—Dissolve a piece of alum the size of a walnut in a pint of boiling water; to this add a couple of tablespoonfuls of flour, made smooth in a little cold water, and a few drops of oil of cloves, letting the whole come to a boil. This paste will keep months. Put it in glass jars, used for canning, or well-cleaned blacking bottles. Use a half-inch bristle brush, which costs but a few pennies. This paste is handy, too, for domestic purposes.

TO FRY FISH.—Cleanse them thoroughly, dry them well, dip them in flour or first in the beaten yolks of eggs, then in grated bread crumbs; fry in lard or beef drippings, or equal parts of lard and butter. Butter alone takes out the sweetness and gives a bad color. Turn on both sides, and cook a rich brown yellow. Fried parsley, grated horseradish or slices of lemon are used as garnish. The fat fried from salt pork is good to fry fish in.

BUTTERED EGGS.—Four eggs, well beaten; three tablespoons of cream or rich unskimmed milk, a little grated tongue or ham, pepper, salt and three ounces of butter. Put all the ingredients, excepting the eggs, into a stewpan and heat; when quite hot, add the eggs and stir while cooking till quite thick. Spread upon buttered toast, and serve hot.

FRUIT OMELET.—Four eggs, one cup of cream, flour or better still, cornstarch to make a thin batter. Add a little fine sugar and nutmeg. Butter a griddle, turn on the batter till it spreads as large as a dinner plate. When thoroughly set, lay on some nice preserves or fine ripe fruit sliced—roll up with a pancake slice, and serve from a flat dish, very hot, and sprinkled with sugar.

HUMOROUS.

"OH, you deceitful wretch!" exclaimed a spirited little woman, as she dashed into the kitchen just in time to detect her husband in the act of hugging the cook. "I've caught you at it, this time, you villain! What do you mean by such outrageous conduct!" "Why, my dear—" "Don't you 'dear' me!" she quickly broke in. "Just tell me why you kissed that horrid thing?" "Why, you see," he stammered, as he waited for his gigantic intellect to help him out of the scrape, "I just wanted to get a taste of what we were going to have for dinner." The excuse was a lame one, but as the cook's mouth was greasy from soup-sampling, the offence was condoned—on the strength of a promised Fall bonnet.

When a lecturer has worked the ladies of his audience so near to the weeping point that they have gotten out their handkerchiefs, and then suddenly changes his tone and speaks of the merits of Dr. Bull's Cough Syrup he is bound to rouse a feeling of indignation.

THE indirect person: It is almost impossible to get a direct answer out of some people. There is Brown, for instance. Fogg met him a few days ago with the remark: "Good morning," but Brown wouldn't commit himself. He simply echoed "Good morning," leaving Fogg in doubt whether he concurred or dissented, or whether he was simply mocking. "How d' ye do?" asked Fogg, and Brown refused to inform him, possibly because Fogg is not a doctor, and in his turn asked: "How d' ye do?" "How are you?" again queried Fogg, and again Brown evaded by returning the question: "How are you?" "Good day," said Fogg, trying another tack; but Brown was not to be caught; he repeated the words "Good day," and hurried off.

"There is no arguing a coward into courage." But even the coward may be brave after trying Kidney-Wort, that medicine of wonderful efficacy in all diseases of the liver and kidneys. It is prepared in both dry and liquid form and can always be relied on as an effective cathartic and diuretic. Try it.

AN undoubted alibi: "And you say that you are innocent of the charge of stealing a rooster from Mr. Jones?" asked an Arkansaw Judge of a meek-looking prisoner. "Yes, sir, I am innocent; as innocent as a child." "You are confident that you did not steal the rooster from Mr. Jones?" "Yes, sir, and I can prove it." "How can you prove it?" "I can prove that I didn't steal Mr. Jones rooster, Judge, becaus I stole two hens from Mr. Graston the same night, and Jones lives five miles from Graston's." "The proof is conclusive," said the Judge. "Discharge the prisoner."

LONE JACK, MO., Sept. 14, 1879.

I have been using Hop Bitters, and have received great benefit from them for liver complaints and malarial fever. They are superior to all other medicines.

ARITHMETICAL: James and Henry go fishing and agree to divide. James has two nibbles and a bite from a dog, and Henry gets two duckings and loses a twelve-shilling hat. What is the share of each?——Six men put in their capital to start a co-operative store. What was left after the manager got into Canada was valued at $250, and this represented one-fifth of what each man put in. How much did the manager get away with?——One person out of every five in the United states has one or more corns, and the cost of effecting a cure is $1.30. What is the number of corn victims, and what would be the cost of placing every person on a sound footing?

*The woman who seeks relief from pain by the free use of alcoholic stimulants and narcotic drugs, finds what she seeks only so far as sensibility is destroyed or temporarily suspended. No cure was ever wrought by such means and the longer they are employed the more hopeless the case becomes. Leave Chloral, morphia, and belladonna alone and use Mrs. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

A SUPERFLUOUS question: A Scotch minister was once busy catechizing his young parishioners before the congregation, when he put the first question to a stout girl whose father kept a public house: "What is your name?" No reply. The question having been repeated the girl replied: "Name o' yer fun, Mr. Minister; ye ken my name well eneuch. D'ye no say when ye come to our house on a night, 'Bet, 'bring me some ale?"

IMPURE BLOOD.—In morbid conditions of the blood are many diseases; such as salt rheum, ring-worm, boils carbuncles, sores, ulcers and pimples. In this condition of the blood try the VEGETINE, and cure these affections. As a blood purifier it has no equal. Its effects are wonderful.

NECK or nothing: Foote, dining at the house of Mrs. Thrale, found nothing to his liking, and sat in expectation of something better. A neck of mutton being the last thing, he refused it, as he had the other dishes. As the servant was taking it away, however, understanding that there was nothing more, Foote called out to him: "Hallo, John; bring that back again. I find it's neck or nothing."

BEAUTIES of the United States language: A gentleman was growling about having to pay a bill twice. "Why did you pay it?" asked his companion. "Pay it? I didn't. It was jayhubbled from me."

Natural petroleum, deprived of its color and disagreeable odor without distillation and the aids of acids or alkalies, is what the Carboline is made from. As now improved and perfected it is a beautiful preparation, and performs all that is claimed for it as a hair restorer.

AN amendment: A reporter interviewed a prize fat woman whose weight is 720 pounds. When asked, "Do you still claim to be the largest fat woman in the world?" she frigidly replied: "Excuse me, sir, but I do not recognize the title. I am said to be the largest large lady on exhibition."

Vegetine

I am Now Using it Freely in My Practice.

"FACTS TELL THE STORY."

BALTIMORE, Md., Jan. 27, 1882.

MR. H. R. STEVENS: Heretofore I have been strongly opposed to all proprietary medicines, but, as there is an exception to most rules, I feel that my prejudice against patent medicines has had a fearful shock in the case of your VEGETINE, and has been compelled to give way before the stronger evidence of facts. About two years ago I was induced to give a fair trial of your VEGETINE as a detergent in some Strumous (Scrofulosis) cases of hereditary transmission, attended with swelling of the lymphatic glands and joints, carious ulcerations of bones and constitutional syphilitic taint, and, in justice, I feel I should be derelict to duty did I not testify to the great value of your VEGETINE. Without exception, I have found it an admirable adjunct in the removal of the above constitutional disturbances. I am now using it freely in my practice. I am aware that I am rendering myself amenable to the charge of unprofessional conduct in thus outraging the rules of medical ethics, in fostering a so-called Quack Medicine. This is simply Bosh! Facts tell the story, and I again assert that VEGETINE is a valuable adjunct to our Materia Medica. If this testimony to its value will sell one more bottle, I shall feel that I have done some poor sufferer a Samaritan benefit.

Yours very truly,
JARVIS R. WILCOX, M. D.

I am Cured.

BOSTON, March 22, 1881.

MR. H. R. STEVENS—Dear Sir: I suffered from Cankor a great while, and tried most every well-known remedy to cure me, but to no avail. At last I bought a bottle of VEGETINE, which helped me, and I continued to use it. Now I can truthfully say I am permanently cured.

Yours very respectfully,

"I WANT a divorce," exclaimed a man, entering the Arkansaw Supreme Court room, and addressing the Judge.

"This is no place for divorces," answered the Judge. "Go and consult a lawyer."

"But I want the question decided whether or not I can get a divorce,"

"What are the grounds?" asked the Judge.

"General cussedness and a failure to gee."

"How long have you been married?"

"I'm not married. I am engaged to a young lady who is going to sue me for breach of promise, and I thought that I'd get a divorce so I'd have the heels on her in case she gained the suit."

He was firmly ejected by the Judge.

"A Drop of Joy in Every Word."

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.. Three months ago I was broken out with large ulcers and sores on my body, limbs and face. I procured your "Golden Medical Discovery" and "Purgative Pellets" and have taken six bottles, and to-day I am in good health, all those ugly ulcers having healed and left my skin in a natural, healthy condition. I thought at one time that I could not be cured. Although I can but poorly express my gratitude to you, yet there is a drop of joy in every word I write.

A NOTED BUT UNTITLED WOMAN.

[From the Boston Globe.]

Messrs. Editors:—

The above is a good likeness of Mrs. Lydia E. Pinkham, of Lynn, Mass., who above all other human beings may be truthfully called the "Dear Friend of Woman," as some of her correspondents love to call her. She is zealously devoted to her work, which is the outcome of a life-study, and is obliged to keep six lady assistants, to help her answer the large correspondence which daily pours in upon her, each bearing its special burden of suffering, or joy at release from it. Her Vegetable Compound is a medicine for good and not evil purposes. I have personally investigated it and am satisfied of the truth of this.

On account of its proven merits, it is recommended and prescribed by the best physicians in the country. One says: "It works like a charm and saves much pain. It will cure entirely the worst form of falling of the uterus, Leucorrhœa, irregular and painful Menstruation, all Ovarian Troubles, Inflammation and Ulceration, Floodings, all Displacements and the consequent spinal weakness, and is especially adapted to the Change of Life."

It permeates every portion of the system, and gives new life and vigor. It removes faintness, flatulency, destroys all craving for stimulants, and relieves weakness of the stomach. It cures Bloating, Headaches, Nervous Prostration, General Debility, Sleeplessness, Depression and Indigestion. That feeling of bearing down, causing pain, weight and backache, is always permanently cured by its use. It will at all times, and under all circumstances, act in harmony with the law that governs the female system.

It costs only $1. per bottle or six for $5., and is sold by druggists. Any advice required as to special cases, and the names of many who have been restored to perfect health by the use of the Vegetable Compound, can be obtained by addressing Mrs. P., with stamp for reply, at her home in Lynn, Mass.

"Mrs. Pinkham's Liver Pills," says one writer, "are the best in the world for the cure of Constipation, Biliousness and Torpidity of the liver. Her Blood Purifier works wonders in its special line and bids fair to equal the Compound in its popularity.

All must respect her as an Angel of Mercy whose sole ambition is to do good to others.
